Truman Blasts GOP 'Misrule'

Democrats Hear They'll Win In '58

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson ripped into the Eisenhower administration Saturday night as tainted with failure and responsible for an economic slump at home and sagging confidence abroad.

Hundreds of party partisans, assembled from over the nation, roared approval as the pair of veterans Democratic war horses jumped to the political firing line.

This was the start of the 1958 campaign to strengthen the Democratic grip on Congress in next fall's elections.

Truman accused the Eisenhower administration of imposing five years of "economic misrule" on the nation. The result, said the peppy former President, has been a "Republican recession" in this country and a "crisis of confidence" overseas.

Stevenson Hits Record

Stevenson, who tried twice for the White House and fell short, slashed at the Republican record as "stained by heavy failure in many areas." He, too, singled out what he termed declining economic and military strength and "the loss of confidence in us abroad."

And, in a preview of what the country can expect from the Democrats in the upcoming campaign, this same theme throbbed through speeches of other party spokesmen—such men as House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson, a pair of Texans.

Harry Truman Dinner

It was a switch from the party's annual Jefferson - Jackson Day dinners to a gala "Harry S. Truman dinner." Upwards of 3,000 Democratic big wigs, party leaders said, shelled out $100 apiece to eat filet mignon, wash it down (Continued on Page Nine)

Racket Probers
Split Over
Kohler Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kohler strike which pitted father against son has split Democratic and Republican senators investigating the violence it generated.

The strife between Walter Reuther's politically powerful United Auto Workers Union and the Wisconsin bathroom fixtures manufacturing firm has become a major subject of inquiry by the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

Its four Republican and four Democratic members have split down party lines on a key issue—whom to summon as the leadoff witness in hearings first scheduled to start Monday. These hearings were suddenly put off until at least Tuesday while the eight senators thresh out the procedural issue.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.), who has warned his colleagues repeatedly against partisan bickering, sought to soft-pedal the split while he reportedly worked on some plan to restore peace among members. It is the second time they have been torn by controversy over this inquiry.

Monroney Predicts Senate Will Approve Four-Cent Stamp

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Monroney (D-Okl.) predicted Saturday the Senate will vote next week for a four-cent stamp on all letters instead of the five cents asked by President Eisenhower on nonlocal mail.

The issue is to be fought out on the Senate floor starting Tuesday, when a postal rate increase bill comes up for debate.

The present three cent stamp, in effect since 1932, appears to be on its way out by July 1.

The House voted last year for a flat four-cent rate as part of a postal revenue increase bill. Then the Senate Post Office Committee voted 7-6 last Thursday to amend this measure to put a five-cent rate on intercity letters for a three-year period, July 1, 1958, to June 30, 1961.

Monroney and Chairman Olin Johnston (D-SC) of the Post Office Committee plan to lead a fight to knock off the five-cent stamp amendment.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California told reporters he expects a fairly close vote on the issue. Knowland said there is a good chance of retaining the amendment as long as the additional one-cent increase is for a limited number of years and revenue from it goes for modernization and construction of new post office buildings and facilities.

"There is substantial support in the Senate for it," Knowland said.

Monroney said in an interview he believes most Democrats and back his fight to beat the amendment.

"We are offering a middle ground proposition," he said. "We are for raising the rate one cent to cut out good part of the deficit" (Continued on Page Nine)

Beauty And Health Go Hand In Hand Teeners Overlook Key To Dream

Every teenager should form the important habit of eating for beauty and health. For no cosmetics can hide the lack of sound nutrition. Poor food habits show up in stringy hair, brittle nails, bad skin and eyes that never sparkle. This teenager (left) knows that at least three glasses of milk a day are essential for good looks. Here, she sips one glass between meals. She starts her day (center) with a well-rounded breakfast which includes grapefruit, cereal, bacon and eggs. It is fine. This gal (right) has hers at the end of a meal, never before or after meals. In fact, she confines her nibbling between meals to fresh fruit and milk.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Every young girl dreams about the things she wants most from life. And there's little doubt that beauty ranks high on the list.

There's a lot of wisdom in that wish, too, for beauty so often is an important steppingstone to other ambitions.

Yet there are some teen-agers who take the wrong road on their approach to beauty through lack of intelligent thinking. They'll spend hours experimenting with countless cosmetics and new hair styles. They'll run themselves ragged to get all the surface fixings and trimmings, and never know that they're neglecting the basis of true beauty—good health.

Expert handling of cosmetics and good clothes sense will improve anyone's appearance. But real beauty must come from within.

If you're serious about becoming more beautiful, you'll eat for beauty. Knowing the kind of food you body needs to function properly can result in clear skin, sparkling eyes and shining hair.

In fact, proper nutrition is so important for teen-agers that a special session on food for young people will be featured by the National Food Conference in Washington.

At least once each day you should have bread, cereal, citrus fruit. A quarter to a third of your fruit and green vegetables, for they contain the vitamins and minerals that help you resist infection. They help to keep your skin and eyes clear, too.

Round out your diet with butter and sweet foods for energy, but if you're smart, you'll nibble sweets after your meals and not before.

Never forget that vibrant beauty is first of all a product of good health. And if you don't strive for it, you aren't giving either your cosmetics or your carefully chosen wardrobe a fair chance to do their best for you.

Proteins, too, should be included in every meal, for they supply the vitality that is the fourth dimension of beauty.

At least once each day you

MacMurray Seminar Draws 230 Students From Area Schools

It was King Newspaper at MacMurray College this February weekend as 230 students from 52 midwestern high schools and colleges met with top journalists to discuss their problems.

The conference became history for the fifth time Saturday evening after Chicago, St. Louis, and Decatur journalists led more than 30 workshops on news, editorial, sports, and feature writing. They were joined by a U. S. Senator, a former movie actress, and the Chicago American publisher in presenting the most illustrious news conference since its inception in 1954.

Senator Paul Douglas was interviewed on U.S. economic and political problems Saturday morning by high school and college journalists in a "press conference" at MacMurray. He spoke in Main Hall to more than 100 delegates before appearing at the Jacksonville County court-house Saturday afternoon.

Miss Anita Colby, President of Women's News Service and former movie actress, talked with MacMurray students and conference delegates on beauty and the theater Friday and Saturday. She addressed United Press Illinois Newspaper Editors meeting Saturday in the Hotel Dunlap in conjunction with the conference.

A second press association met also Saturday in Jacksonville as the state chapter of the National Press Photographers Association held its business meeting Saturday in the MacMurray Little Theater and its annual "Miss Illinois Press Photographer" beauty show that evening.

Stuart List, Chicago American publisher, urged that newspapers improve their product and develop a sense of community responsibility, at Friday evening's banquet. He was introduced to more than 500 attending the banquet in McClelland dining hall, by Karen Walsh, Chicago Sun-Times city editor.

Walsh was presented with a citation at the festivities, honoring him for outstanding leadership in news and feature writing workshops at each of MacMurray's five conferences. He introduced also the "faculty" of this year's MacMurray's conference, who include:

Ralph Ulrich, Chief Copy Reader, Sun-Times; Robert Kennedy, Chief Editorial Writer, Sun-Times conference later that morning.

MISS COLBY GIVES BEAUTY SHOW

One of the star attractions at MacMurray's newspaper conference was Miss Anita Colby, above, former movie actress and current President of Women's News Service. She is shown here discussing makeup and fashion with 400 MacMurray students and conference delegates in Ann Marshall Orr Auditorium Friday morning. Miss Colby, who was interviewed on Ed Murrow's "Person-to-Person" show two weeks previously, spoke to United Press Illinois newspaper editors meeting Saturday in the hotel Dunlap, and again to MacMurray students that afternoon in Main Hall, on "Behind the Scenes," a discussion of the theatre.

NEWS FROM CAPITAL POWERS ADVANCES IN GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — The rise in grain futures prices this week was credited by traders more to developments in Washington than to any economic factor.

In reality, they said, there seemed a fairly general inclination to ignore some of the bearish facts of life, such as prospective demand and sources of supply. However, the cold weather throughout the Midwest, and courts of export business were at least strong influences, if not the major ones.

Indeed, the sharpest single advance of the week was made on Monday and was ascribed to considerable amounts of export business and the weather, but other gains were added along the way which were powered partly by news from Washington, as well as other influences.

Among the Washington developments there were two which had important effects on the market.

One was revival by congressmen for action on a bill to freeze farm price supports at their 1957 levels for 1958 crops. It had a bullish effect, although moderate because some traders said the bill was far from passage and doubted that it ever could become law in view of President Eisenhower's off-stated opposition to it.

The other development came late in the week and was the renewal of action by some Midwestern Republican congressmen seeking the resignation of Secretary of Agriculture Benson. It probably was the strongest of several such actions in that direction, and the trade gave it considerable weight.

The lawmakers were reported to have used the argument this time that Benson's farm program, which President Eisenhower has endorsed, has hurt the Republican party's political chances in the farm states.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Along with falling snow and dropping temperatures in the eastern United States the stock market this week took a tumble as well.

But the market's decline was not a toboggan ride. Although prices fell, they did so on the smallest volume since the week ended last Oct. 5.

It was the market's second straight weekly dip. Prices were still ahead of their 1957 close on balance.

Turn over for the week was only 9,201,349 shares, for a daily average of 1,640,269 shares. It was the lightest trading since 8,267,455 shares changed hands in the October week.

The heavy snowstorm and frigid temperature cut down trading on Monday and Tuesday to about the level that prevailed on the last Veterans' Day, Nov. 11. Fewer people got to board rooms. Some customers' men were marooned in snowy suburbs. Transportation was a problem.

The market's decline was irregular as shown by the weekly total of 698 declines to 481 advances.

Lorillard again was an outstanding feature but this week on the downside. The word was out to take profits on this stock, which was selling at a price almost triple its low of the past year.

The five most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Lorillard, off 2 at 40% on 260,500 shares; North American Aviation, off 3% at 26%; Standard Oil (New Jersey), off 1% at 48; Safeway Stores, up 1% at 28%; and General Motors, off 1% at 34%.

Heavyweight Division In An Old Time Tizzy

NEW YORK (AP) — The heavyweight division was in an old time tizzy today. Argentina's nose-slashed Alex Miteff and Sweden's undefeated Ingemar Johansson, the winners in Friday's two major fights, said they wanted no part of world champion Floyd Patterson right now.

Cuba's hulking Nino Valdes, who does want a title shot, still screamed "I wuz robbed."

That's the normal lament of a close loser. Only 33-year-old Nino, who lost to Miteff, added some Spanish touches after he dropped a narrow, split 10-round decision in a savage, bloody (Miteff's blood) brawl in Madison Square Garden.

"People are tired of getting liberal pep talks and reactionary policies," he said. "They are tired of getting words when they ask for deeds. They are tired of being deceived about conditions at home and abroad."

Truman, too, said the people are weary of deceit. He and Stevenson both told the Democrats that Americans want the truth.

The 73-year-old Truman was of a mind to pour it on and give 'em hell in the spirit of his own uphill presidential campaign of 1948.

Raps President

In his address he lit to President Eisenhower from start to finish, not by name but unmissably.

"People are tired of getting liberal pep talks and reactionary policies," he said. "They are tired of getting words when they ask for deeds. They are tired of being deceived about conditions at home and abroad."

"People want the truth

They want action at the top—for the good of the nation and for the welfare and benefit of the ordinary citizen."

National Scandal

Truman pronounced it "a national scandal" the way he said New and Fair Deal programs of security for the aged, unemployed and broken families have been allowed to stagnate.

Like the French Bourbons of old, he said, the Republicans never learn anything and never forget the special privilege class."

The results can be seen all around, he said, in such things as four or five million men and women looking for work, millions more on part time, bankruptcies at a near peak, school programs neglected, colleges short of funds, hospitals overcrowded, highways in need of rebuilding.

Recession

But in spite of the "Republican recession," Truman said, "the GOP manages to keep prices up."

"We had a hard time getting a satellite off the ground," he said, "but it was no trick at all for them to shoot the cost of living into outer space."

Republican campaign orators, he said, are saying the Democrats are betting on a depression and the Republicans on prosperity, and he wants to ask them:

"What are the five million unemployed betting on?"

"Even more important: what are they betting with?"

Star Technique

After slapping at what he called a Republican smear technique, Truman added:

"One of the worst results of this period of economic misrule is its effect on the international situation. The present administration has acted like an overbearing banker with a glass eye, not like a loyal and faithful friend to other nations, and the crisis of confidence in our leadership has sapped the strength and determination of the great alliance."

Slipped Backward

He said the "most terrifying result" of a five-year period of GOP complacency is that Russia has been determinedly driving ahead while "we have slipped backward in relative strength."

Adequate national defense, adequate foreign policy, and adequate economic planning

SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla.—(NEA)—One of the more interesting spring baseball stories will come from Billy Martin's attempt to establish himself as a shortstop with the Tigers.

If Martin can play shortstop and Harvey Kuenn, whom he would succeed, starts to hit again now that he is an outfielder, the young Detroit club could stir up headaches for the Yankees. And Martin still has special reasons for doing just that and then some. He still has not gotten over being traded by the Yankees to Kansas City after the $1,000-a-plate Copacabana party of last summer.

"Were you ever the victim of a bum rap?" asks the fiery Portuguese-Italian who is in a major league training camp other than that of the Yankees for the first time since he came around nine years ago. "Well, I feel bad . . . like a guy being punished for something he didn't do."

"George Weiss never liked me and Casey Stengel did. Weiss wanted to trade me to Washington shortly after I came up in 1950, but Casey wouldn't stand for it. I had helped Casey win a pennant in Oakland in 1948 and I was known as his pet."

"I was never on a losing club until they sent me to Kansas City last June. How bad could I have been? Seven other clubs wanted me. I was just a pawn between two brains."

"I'm not mad at Weiss. I never got to know the man. If he knew me, I say he would think different about me."

Mantle was a big, bashful kid when he first reported. We hit it off well. We were roomies during the season and fished and hunted together throughout the winter. Hurt him? You don't hurt your friends. In the seven years that we were together all Mickey did was win batting championships, triple crowns and most valuable player awards. I wish someone would hurt me like that."

Martin hasn't the slightest doubt that he can move over from second to make it at short.

"I played shortstop in high school, in the minors and the Army and have had considerable experience there in the American League," he recalls.

"The reason some baseball men suspect that I can't play the position is that Casey Stengel put me back on second base after only two games at shortstop when I came out of the Army in 1955. Casey must have thought I could play shortstop because he announced I would be there the rest of the season. And Casey most certainly knew me for I had spent my entire career with him."

"Sure, I had a bad day and made a couple of errors, but I was fresh out of Fort Carson and had played little. How is a ballplayer going to establish himself anywhere unless the manager sticks with him for a while? But the Yankees were second at the time and you know how Casey is. One little slip and you are out of there."

"I wanted to play shortstop when the Yankees went to Japan in the fall of 1955, but Gil McDougald had the same idea and I wasn't going to stand in his way."

"McDougald showed what a good infielder can do when he puts his mind to it, and I'm going to do the same thing for the Tigers. I learned a lot about playing shortstop playing alongside Phil Rizzuto, who was the best, and McDougald. I'm not concerned about going into the hole. My arm is the least of my worries. I can throw with Mantle or anybody else."

"The most important thing in playing shortstop is knowing the hitters and being in position to make the play. The shortstop must break quicker than the second baseman. He's got to flip the ball to first base on slow rollers or balls hit through the box."

"Jack Tigue says he'll stick with me. And I'll show him a shortstop."

Martin points out that the Tigers, starting with Al Kaline, have a number of players who know how to win. He keeps telling you that mental lapses in the World Series indicate the Yankees are ready to be taken.

"See you later," Martin told Casey Stengel the day he was sentenced to Kansas City. He's never forgotten it. And he hopes the Tigers—"now that they have a shortstop"—will be the vehicle.

Collinsville Anxious For Herrin To Return To State Playoffs

By TOM PENDERGAST

Southern Illinois AP Correspondent

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (AP)—"The first thing we look for in the paper is the Herrin basketball score," a Collinsville resident said. "We don't want another team to keep Herrin out of the state tournament—then we couldn't beat 'em."

This statement pretty much expresses the feeling in this Madison County city of 12,000. Herrin's Tigers edged Collinsville High School in the state finale at Champaign last year 45-42. Since then, only revenge has inspired the Kahoks.

Some observers who have seen both teams play say Collinsville is at least as fast as the scrappy Herrin Tigers.

To back up the senior-junior combination that makes up the first five, Collinsville has at least three other tall boys. They include seniors Gary Dolzall and Cray Sineskey, and freshman Bogie Redman, all 6-3.

Friday Night Scores

Jacksonville's height advantage began to take its toll in the second quarter and the Crimsons combined this with a fast break in the second half to wallop Feithians of Springfield Friday night at the JHS Bowl, 64-46.

The Central Conference contest was played before a packed house and the spectators watched the Crimson machine roll to its 20th victory in 24 starts. The triumph also boosted JHS' conference mark to five wins in six games. The Jacks are idle for a week until they wrap up their regular season against Pittsfield at home next Saturday night.

Hopper Offense

Bob Carpenter's Flyers played a full court press throughout the game and this tended to slow down Jacksonville's progress for awhile. However, the Crimsons got off to an early lead at the outset and maintained anywhere from three to four point margins. Feithians stayed in contention for the lead when Jacksonville went the final 1:03 of the initial period without a tally and baskets by Jackson and Webster moved the visitors into a 13-12 first quarter spread.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

WILL HOG PRICES RISE THIS SPRING?

Ordinarily we would be expecting some improvement in hog prices at this time of the year. Prices usually rise at this season because farmers have fewer hogs to sell each week than they had the week before. The average price rise from winter low to summer high is around 25 to 30 per cent.

Several factors seem to be combining to prevent the normal spring price increase this year. If prices do go up, the rise seems likely to be much smaller than usual.

1. Prices are already unusually high for this season of the year. It is more difficult to lift prices from a high level than from a low one.

2. Farmers are reported to be holding back hogs to use wet corn. This seems to have prevented the usual bunching of marketings in the late fall and early winter. It may also tend to maintain large marketings through March and April.

3. The supply of beef will not shrink so much as usual during the late winter and early spring. Marketings of grain-fed cattle will be relatively heavy in April and May.

4. Prospective suppliers of broilers are about 10 per cent above the record supply of a year ago.

5. Finally, and perhaps most important, about 4½ million persons are unemployed, and many more are earning less than normal wages. Unemployment checks are running out. Many workers who have not yet been laid off will be spending money cautiously, trying to save a little... "just in case."

While conditions may not support a seasonal price rise, there should be enough shrinkage in market supplies of hogs to prevent any major price decline during the next few months. The weekly supply of pork usually drops about one-third from January 1 to July 1. It seems likely to drop a little less than usual this year. The much-talked-about increase in hog production will not show up in the markets until about August.

At mid-July prices, a hundred pounds of live hogs were equal in value to 21 bushels of corn. This was one of the most favorable hog-corn price ratios on record. The 10-year average is only 13.5 bushels of corn to 100 pounds of hogs. The recent price relationship makes it very profitable to feed hogs to much heavier than usual weights.

Price discounts for heavy hogs are normally greatest from January through March. This year large discounts may be continued through April and even into May.

Recently 270- to 300-pound hogs were selling for around $1.25 a hundred pounds less than 200-pound hogs. A couple of years ago the difference was $1.50 to $1.75. It might exceed these figures this year.

In spite of all our talk about farmers' holding back hogs, average slaughter weights since November have been almost exactly the same as they were a year ago. So maybe farmers are not holding back as many hogs as we thought.

4-H Salute to Parents

TO THE 4-H CLUB MEMBERS OF AMERICA:

My warm greetings to all of you as you plan ahead for National 4-H Club Week. You and your leaders can take great pride in your achievements of the past year, and in the greater goals that you have set for yourselves for this year's accomplishments on your farms, in your homes, and your communities.

It is gratifying to know that during this Club Week, you will honor parents—not only your own, but all parents. Mothers and fathers, as our first teachers, influence our lives immeasurably and deserve great credit and deep appreciation for the wise guidance and great inspiration they give us.

My hope is that the spirit and promise of this week's observance will carry through not only 1958, but to the time when you have homes and families of your own. The training and experience you are receiving now in 4-H Club work will enable you to build the kind of homes that create a nation of peace, strength, and progress.

Feed Handling Demonstration Held In Scott

WINCHESTER—The Livestock Feeds and Automatic Feed Handling Equipment meeting held in Scott county was well attended on one of the coldest days of the year, according to Harold Morris, chairman of the Scott County Extension Council. Ninety-three farmers turned out to tour the William and Marvin Kleinschmidt farm with Bernard Goetze, Bluffs vo-ag instructor, in charge. William and Marvin Kleinschmidt pointed out their grinding and mixing arrangements. A complete supplement was prepared by using meat scraps, soybean meal and other ingredients and this transported to a mix mill where the grain was blended into the ration for hogs and beef cattle.

At the Fred Beckman farm near Merritt, Willet Pierce, Wincheser vo-ag instructor, was in charge and pointed out the use of a complete supplement which was blended with grains produced on the farm. Other equipment of interest was a Helix mixing wagon provided by Howard Hurlebrink and a grain elevator owned by Beckman that will also handle silage. The trench silo with corn silage and electric automatic wipers were also pointed out at the Beckman farm.

The advocates of soiling or "zero-grazing" claim many advantages for it. They say that it reduces trampling and waste of pasture, reduces fencing costs, makes weed control easier especially in the fencerows, makes shade and water easier to supply and helps to control bloat. Stock spend less time walking and more time eating, do not soil the grass the droppings and do not selective-graze, making it easier to maintain desirable pasture mixtures. You may think of many more advantages.

Advantages

Soiling has some disadvantages. One is increased labor. In the 1956 experiment on the Station, 34 ewes and their lambs were served fresh chopped pasture once a day. But it took about three hours a day to chop, haul and feed the forage. Then there were rainy days when the tractor and chopper stuck in the field.

Another disadvantage is that the manure from confined stock needs to be spread on the fields. But the biggest disadvantage in our experiment was that the sheep flock did not do as well on the fresh chopped feed. The lambs lost weight while their counterparts on pasture were gaining normally.

Results from soiling experiments at other stations vary. Some claim additional milk or meat production; some report reduced production.

IF

Our suggestion to any who may be planning soiling—and it does have advantages—would be first to check with several farmers who have tried it. Second, make sure that the increase you expect to get from it is worth the extra labor and machinery cost. A recent New Jersey test reported an increase in milk production, but feeding fresh chop to 50 cows added more than three hours of labor a day. Third, make sure that the forage to be chopped is of the highest quality. Fourth, consider your land scarce and high and your labor plentiful and cheap.

4-H ELECTRICITY SCHOOL TO BEGIN

Bob Hayward, Jr., assistant farm adviser, announces that the first session of the 4-H electricity school will be held at Farm Bureau hall Tuesday, March 4, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The school will meet one night each week throughout March.

Representatives of the REA, Illinois Power Company and CIPS will be the instructors.

Waverly Mill Celebrates Anniversary

WAVERLY—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seitz and the employees of the Seitz Mill and Feed Company celebrated the 10th anniversary of the firm's existence Tuesday evening in the American Legion building in Waverly. Despite the near zero weather a very large crowd was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Seitz purchased the mill on Feb. 16, 1948. It had been in operation for many years under various ownerships. An expansion program was begun that year and the plant has been enlarged greatly since then. Egg grading equipment was added in 1955.

Last year's business was triple that of 1948.

Dr. Charles F. Deatherage served as master of ceremonies. Speakers for the evening included Robert Harris, division of marketing, Illinois Department of Agriculture; Robert McGriff and Robert Anderson of Master-Mix Feeds; Edgar H. Chicoine, Jamesway Equipment; Warren Weinert, Chemical Fertilizer representative; George Richter of Williamson, former vocational agriculture instructor at Waverly and Franklin and Wilson M. Smith, former publisher of the Waverly Journal.

Present employees of the mill served Mrs. Emery Seitz, bookkeeper; Herschel Hart, in charge of the egg department; Emery Seitz, in charge of the chemical and fertilizer department; and Albert Sonnen, in charge of cleaning and grading.

The Elm City Ramblers of Jacksonville entertained at intervals during the evening and after the program as refreshments of doughnuts and coffee were served.

Jacksonville Is In Business To Stay!

There are two kinds of propaganda we detest. One stinking brand bears the Russian trademark. The other, of American manufacture, is almost equally insidious. It is of the American brand, irresponsibly slapped together and circulated, that we speak.

It has been whispered in undertones that business in Jacksonville has been taking a beating this winter. There are those who will tell you (just try to pin them down) that employment is "away off" in the Jacksonville community—that the picture is discouraging and bleak.

Propaganda of that kind, like all reports unsupported by facts, can do harm if large numbers of people believe it. Fortunately, people of the Jacksonville area have keen perception. The most of them refuse to be stampeded into the belief that things are not what they ought to be.

Business in the Jacksonville area is basically sound. That is reflected in all available statistics.

Employment is normal at this time of year. Except for layoffs of some local residents who are employed by industries in other cities, the job situation is about as it always is.

Thousands are gainfully employed in Jacksonville business establishments, educational and welfare institutions, and industries. The aggregate number of jobs and positions is going up, not down.

City sales tax figures speak more eloquently than irresponsible innuendos. During the first eleven months of 1957, Jacksonville business establishments did $29,433,512.20 worth of business—TWO MILLION MORE than during the first eleven months of 1956. There is reason to believe that the intervening months will continue this upward trend when retail sales tax figures are available.

Jacksonville's Dollar Day on Feb. 12 was a bustling, widespread success. Some stores did more, some less, than the preceding Dollar Day. It's that way every year.

We know at least six merchants who were elated by the success of the recent Dollar Day sale. They didn't hesitate to say so. Their business was considerably above other sales events in recent years.

Yesterday's George Day Sale was another indication that local business men are up-and-coming. The special sales promotion furnished the buying public with dependable merchandise at bargain prices. Those satisfied customers are coming back again and again.

Building activities which usually are nil at this season are in evidence on both extremes of the business district. Elliott State Bank is spending $200,000 for drive-in banking on the east side; Farmers State Bank is in the midst of a $100,000 drive-in improvement on the west side; Our Saviour's hospital is erecting a $1,200,000 addition on East State street.

Before many months, at the conclusion of a campaign now gaining momentum, Passavant School of Nursing will rise in the northwest section of the city.

The State of Illinois has launched a $2,000,000 series of highway improvements in Morgan county.

Individual instances of failure are ever present in any community. You can always find someone who is ready to write the finish of anything.

Again we point out that the economy of the Jacksonville area is basically sound. The arrival of spring weather will signal still greater activity in all lines of endeavor.

Jacksonville is in business to stay!

THE MASTERY OF ANGER

Ephesians 4:26: "Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger."

Many years ago I heard a sermon by Dr. Bernard C. Claussen which I have never forgotten. He said that if there were to be one honorary degree that he would rather have conferred upon him than any other it would be the degree of "M.A., Master of Anger." He pointed out that there was a place for righteous anger. But it must be controlled anger. The person who can be righteously angry, and still be the master of his anger rather than letting his anger master him has indeed won a distinguished degree.

Most of the men in the Bible were strong tempered men. Moses, Elijah, the Apostle Peter, and even our Lord Jesus himself, all had tremendous capacities for anger and indignation. But it was a controlled anger—directed toward good ends. They were Masters of Anger.

What we have to watch out for is anger that is simply bad temper. Many people who have never outgrown their childhood let loose their rage in all kinds of tantrums, quarrels, and emotional explosions which cause an immense amount of trouble. This kind of anger breaks up homes, splits up churches, upsets the program of everyday business, and brings on wars among nations. Here is where we have a great moral responsibility, to become Masters of Anger—well governed human beings, able to cooperate with others.

In one of my pastorates we had an old pastor emeritus of the church, Dr. Charles Fulton, who used to give some very common sense testimonies in prayer meetings. One night he was speaking about these words of Paul to the Ephesians, "Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger." He said, "I always tell young married people that when Paul said this he meant in plain English, 'Don't stay mad after sundown!'"

How right he was. If there has been a display of temper in the home or in the office, get it settled before the end of the day. Let one say to the other, "I'm sorry. I am not quite sure how this all started, but you may be right, and I may be wrong." If you can agree, well and good. If you can't agree, then agree to disagree. Forget it, and start out the work of another day. Kneel down before God and leave the master in his care. For as Count Keyserling once said, "Problems are not so much solved, as they are dismissed, in the presence of a higher unity."

In the early days of the Christian church there was a bishop of Constantinople whose name was John. He felt that a nobleman he knew of Nicetas had mistreated him. The more he thought about it the angrier he got. But then there came to his remembrance these words of the Apostle Paul, "Do not let the sun go down on your anger." So he sent a message of one sentence to Nicetas, who was likewise a Christian. The sentence was simply this: "My Lord, the sun goeth down." Nicetas and the bishop were immediately reconciled. They both experienced the joy of forgiveness and reconciliation—one of the sweetest experiences this side of heaven.

If you have wronged anyone, or feel that you have been wronged—especially by someone you love—would it not be the will of God that before this day is done you bring the misunderstanding to an end? Be worthy of the degree, "M.A., Master of Anger." Remember, "the sun goeth down." Life is soon at an end.

"What they ought to do is carry Vanguard aloft in a Jupiter C and drop it into orbit."

"Notice the gorgeous thrust on that dame near the bar. I think I'll move in for a count-down and maybe we can get into orbit together."

"This has nothing to do with exercise," Green answered. "I'm getting ready to take a short trip to Florida, and I want to get used to the weather you're having down there before I leave."

"Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) was startled on a recent cold night to see 90-year-old athletic-minded Sen. Theodore Francis Green walking home from an Italian embassy party."

"Theodore, don't you think you're carrying your physical fitness routine a little too far by taking a walk on a night like this?" Flanders asked.

"The red-faced lady explained she thought the party was being thrown by the ambassador's charming daughter Ghida who has

So They Say

I am running now for the 1960 race and have asked President Eisenhower to be my running mate. I don't really expect to win in 1960, but I will be elected in 1972 the way I figure it.

"Bishop" Homer Tomlinson, 65, of New York, self-styled religious leader and "King of the World."

I don't know much about pistols, so this one had a hole in the end so I didn't argue.

Fort Wayne, Ind., liquor store owner Bernard Lamonte, asked to identify holdup weapon.

The pendulum is swinging now toward film (on TV), but it'll find the center. Then film and live TV will dwell in a co-existence.

"Looks like an ink blot on one of those psychological tests," one guest said to another.

"I'll bet the only thing it reminds the ambassador of," his friend replied, "is the high cost of living."

It's sheer bunk that you can't smell vodka on the breath of a person who has been drinking it. Ask any practicing Moslem—they don't drink—in the diplomatic set here.

Anderson lingered around the film industry until 1936, writing, directing and occasionally acting. Then he drifted away.

He visits with old friends and spends his nights watching television. Yes, he sees the adult Westerns and can reel them all off by name.

"They're a lot better than the Westerns we used to make," he admitted. "They've got good actors too—men like Jim Arness and Richard Boone and Jim Garner. But they play pretty much the same. If Boone was playing Maverick and Garner was in Gunsmoke, they'd still be playing the roles according to their own personalities."

Of the movie cowpokes, he cited Gary Cooper, Jimmy Stewart and John Wayne as good performers. Especially Cooper.

"He's just about the best cowboy who has ever been on the screen," said Broncho Billy. "He looks like one and when he says, 'When you call me that—smile, you can believe him.'"

A GOOD REASON

INDIANAPOLIS (R)—Members of the congregation at Calvary Lutheran Church were aghast when they observed organist A. C. Schewark bouncing around on his bench while playing solemn hymns.

Later Schewark explained a squirrel had been hiding in the organ and started running up his pants leg who the music started.

In most stores clerks work on commission, and the one who first shows a product should make the final sale.

A tactful wife—

Never asks her husband how he came out when he gets home after an evening of poker with the boys. She can tell just by looking at his face, for no husband has enough of a poker face to fool his wife.

Never goes up to her husband when he is charming an attractive woman and makes a remark like, "Don't you think we'd better leave now, darling? You still have to take the baby sitter home and you know you have to get your rest."

Never reminds her husband in front of others of how she kept him from making a serious mistake. Or, on the other hand, how he made a mistake because he didn't listen to her.

Never corrects her husband when he is telling a story, unless he is misquoting her. And then only if it really matters. Most times it doesn't.

A SITUATION SAVER

Never leaves her husband with his foot in his mouth if she can right things by a light remark or smooth over his tactless statement by somehow turning it into a compliment.

Never tells a story that makes her husband out as stupid, stingy, stubborn or lacking in courage. In fact, she never tries to get laughs or sympathy at her husband's expense.

WASHINGTON (R)—An old-time political clubhouse.

That's the picture of the Federal Communications Commission emerging from an investigation by the government's big regulatory agencies by the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight.

The subcommittee is still far from getting down to the bottom of its investigation. So far—and it's been a mixed-up picture—it has been only skimming the surface.

Right now the subcommittee is trying to find out what happened when the FCC—which licenses radio and TV stations and awards channels worth millions—approved a TV channel for a station in Miami.

"Jobs weren't easy to get, most of those years," he explains. "I didn't go to high school. Finished eighth grade, before I went to work doing odd jobs—painting, working on an ice wagon—to help my mother and the kids."

Three years later I bought out the original owner, who didn't like machines like I do."

"Every time I fix a motor I'm glad I'm not fixing it out in the street in below-zero weather. It's work, sure, but the Lord gave me the best part of my life when he gave me my 65th birthday, and I'll never forget it."

The Day He Retired

BY BEULAH STOWE

"The sun came up in my life the day I retired," says B.E.P., "and it has been shining on me every day since."

B.E.P. was a streetcar motorman in a snow-and-ice city for 37 years, until he retired six years ago. He didn't like his job, and he didn't enjoy customers who wanted to argue with him, and he hated the gray sunless winter days and the constant crowds around him, but it was a job.

"Jobs weren't easy to get, most of those years," he explains. "I didn't go to high school. Finished eighth grade, before I went to work doing odd jobs—painting, working on an ice wagon—to help my mother and the kids."

I think an analogy might be found in the position of the physician and surgeon in a world of disease and suffering. His ability to be of help depends upon his living, not apart from that world, but above it. He lives in a world of health, as well. Health is his concern. Health is his aid, and in a sense his atmosphere.

From the standpoint of endurance there is not much to be said.

Strong religious convictions, whatever their nature, give to life great powers of fortitude and endurance. I think that probably that is true of all forms of religion.

But from the standpoint of endurance, it is a different matter.

We sing "Joy to the world, the Lord is come" but the somberness of much religion is strangely in contrast with the song.

More Fraudulent Checks Show Up In Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE—Additional fraudulent checks have been circulated in the Jerseyville vicinity since the first of February in addition to the flock of rubber ones put out here by two men being held in the county jail as the result of their activity in passing the bogus ones.

The most recent check dispenser is reported to be a woman past middle age. She passed a $25 check at a local store after making several small purchases. The check was a typical bogus one, made payable to the woman and bearing the signature of a fictitious drawer.

Warrants were issued in the latter case, but up to Wednesday evening, there had been no arrests. It is believed the woman and her companion are transients, and that they left the community following the passing of the checks.

Local officials reported Tuesday evening that one of the men held in the county jail here for the passing of bogus checks will be wanted in Madison county for similar activities. It was told that three checks were passed in the East Alton area several weeks ago prior to the time of the ones that were passed recently in Jerseyville.

Fuel Oil Stolen

The cold wave has brought about the theft of fuel oil from supplies kept in residential areas. Practically all residents having oil barrels for storage of fuel outside their homes, have padlocks on the spouts.

The recent oil thieves have not even bothered to remove the padlocks. They carried a hose and siphoned the fuel oil from the bung hole of the barrels.

WHITE HALL LOYAL DAUGHTERS MEET THURSDAY

WHITE HALL — The Loyal Daughters Class of the First Christian Church met Thursday at the home of Mrs. James Jolly, with a potluck luncheon at noon, with the pastor, Rev. Ruth Nicklin, giving the prayer of grace, and the prayer at the beginning of the business meeting.

Cards were signed and sent to Mrs. Glen Vandaver in Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. Harold Miles, the former convalescing from surgery in the home of a son-in-law and daughter, and Mrs. Milne at her home in this city.

A silent auction was held which netted a substantial sum to the class treasury, and members discussed the "Mill dinner" to be held at the church in March and the Modern Woodmen banquet in April. The group will meet with Dorothy M. Young in March for a potluck luncheon.

THE CRESCENT EARTH

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

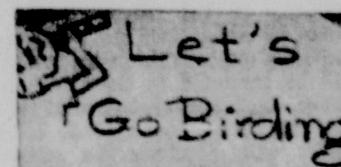

How would earth look to an observer on the moon? When the observer is in the shadows, the earth would appear as a thin crescent with the horns almost meeting in a complete circle. This is caused by the atmosphere of the earth.

During an eclipse of the moon, the earth would appear like a giant gold ring in the sky. This again would be the result of the earth's atmosphere.

During a solar eclipse, an observer on the moon would be able to see the dark shadow of the moon move across the face of the sun.

Like Physical Globe
The continents on earth would be quite plainly visible even with the unaided eye. As a matter of fact, earth would look like a globe showing the physical features of earth with crumpled cellophane around it. The cellophane effect would be the result of the atmosphere and clouds.

During one earth day, an ob-

SIGN OF SPRING

By EMMA MAE LEONARD

Spring is on its way. Robins and Bluebirds are on their way north; some few have already arrived. Yes, a few remained with us all winter.

We must confess that some of us saw a flock of over twenty-five Robins on January 27, dining on some sumac seeds at Lake Jacksonville. But Bluebirds are always scarce in the winter.

As we said before spring is on its way. Some believe the first Robin to be the sign of spring; others look for the first Bluebird. When they find the Bluebird, or better, hear it, they feel different; they have again found the bird of happiness and the promise of spring.

If anyone isn't sentimental enough to believe that the Bluebird can symbolize happiness for him, then he has missed something if he doesn't receive a thrill when he hears the plaintive warble of the Bluebird, then there must be something wrong with him.

Why Symbol Of Happiness?

Perhaps some of you readers wonder, and perhaps all of us should, why so much sentiment is attached to the Bluebird. Why is happiness always associated with it?

There the bird often sits on a cold bare branch of a tree or a clammy telephone wire, round-shouldered or hunched over, looking sad and lonely. Is being droopy and sad being happy?

But our mood soon changes. Down from that bare branch or clammy wire floats a bundle of blue: sky blue, ocean blue; the blue of the heights and the blue of the depths, true blue, pure blue, happy blue.

Happy Song?

Or perhaps the Bluebird's song is a happy one. On the contrary, it is never described as happy; it is often described as "the note of complaint" or "the plaintive warble."

It is never gushing, air-splitting nor thrilling; never a part of a chorus nor of a symphony. No, the throaty short warble seems to float along from far away or from the sky and space itself, and yet the singer may be perched on a nearby fence post.

Its song is a simple liquid "chur-rue" or a series of soft, single "cheer-ee" notes. And those notes come from that bundle of happy blue.

Perhaps we hear "cheer-ies" dropping from the sky. And we feel good for the message of cheer, for the message that spring is on its way.

about your brother, don't you?"

Nodding his head Jed said, "Yes, I do. Toto. Why did you do it? You know you'll hang for it."

"I know why Greg killed your brother, Jed," said a voice.

Greg and Jed looked up in surprise to see Laura standing in the door.

"You keep out of this," growled Greg.

"Let her talk," said Jed. "This might prove interesting."

"Well," began Laura. "Greg saw your brother, Ed bring some gold nuggets into the assay office. Greg threatened to kill me if I didn't keep quiet."

Thunder I think we have found the Todd ranch," Jed whispered to his horse.

Sure enough, it was. To Jed who had worked on many a large ranch, he decided this was the largest.

Jed rode on slowly, because he might give himself away. When he reached the Todd ranch, Jed rode hard for four hours. Finally, a large fence appeared and off in the distance, he could see a couple of buildings.

"You're in real trouble, you know," Jed said to Greg. "Now, I know you'll hang."

Jed started the long journey back to Dusty Water with Greg and Laura. As they rode along, he told Greg his lost glove gave him away.

"Greg Todd was given a trial and a month later was hung. Jed took Laura and went to St. Louis. There they were married."

"Ma'am," he said, as he took his hat off. "Are you Mrs. Todd?"

"No," said the girl, "I'm Greg Todd's sister."

"I'm sorry," stammered Jed as he looked at the pretty girl. "I'd like to see your brother about some business, private business."

"I understand," she said politely, "but Greg isn't..."

They were interrupted by a booming voice.

"Laura, who's there?"

"It's a Mister," she paused and turned to Jed. "What is your name?"

"Jed Smith."

"It's a Jed Smith," she yelled.

Then a man about twenty-nine came around the corner of one of the smaller buildings of the ranch.

"Jed Smith?" growled Greg.

"What in tarnation do you want?"

"I want to talk to you in private," replied Jed.

"Well, OK, we'll go in the house."

Gun Battle

Jed followed Greg into the house. All of a sudden Greg drew his Colt and fired. Jed had been watching every move of Greg, and jumped aside, drew his Colt and jumped aside, drew his Colt and jumped aside.

PUBLISHER PRESENTS VIEWS TO CONFERENCE

Stuart List, publisher of the Chicago American, standing, presented his views of newspaper ethics and policies to a large delegation of journalists from all parts of the country and about 275 representatives from college and high school newspaper staffs in the college dining hall at MacMurray's fifth annual newspaper conference.

At left is Karin J. Walsh, City Editor, Chicago Sun-Times; on right are Anita Colby, former movie actress and current President of Women's News Service; and President Louis W. Norris, MacMurray College.

Chicago Editor Says Newspapers Present 'Full Detail, Depth'

(Reprinted from Saturday's Journal)

"The newspaper is still, by all odds, the basic and more important news-gathering agency in the world," declared Stuart List, publisher of The Chicago American, at a banquet Friday night which brought to a close the first day of MacMurray College's fifth annual newspaper conference.

"Newspaper staffs all over the world get the facts out of which news stories are prepared for papers, wire services, radio and television broadcasts."

"But we have to realize that other media can flash the news faster to the public than can we. So we first have to present the news 'in full detail and depth'—in a form which is available at any time our customer wants to read it. We can also present background and variety in a far greater measure than our electronic competitors."

52 Schools Represented

Mr. List delivered his address to an audience which included 230 delegates from 42 colleges and 10 high schools, who are attending the annual student newspaper conference, and scores of newspapermen and women, representing many metropolitan and downstate newspapers.

Twenty United Press Illinois editors who are holding a weekend meeting here were in the audience.

At the speaker's table were members of the faculty from Chicago, St. Louis, and Decatur newspapers, and glamorous Anita Colby, the former movie star who is now editor of Women's News Service. Miss Colby is a member of the conference faculty.

The banquet program opened with invocation by Dr. Louis W. Norris, president of MacMurray College, who later gave a short talk on history and present educational services of the co-educational institution.

Miss Dorothy Bunke, editor-in-chief of "The Greetings" college newspaper, extended welcome to the delegates and guests.

A satire on the journalistic profession in the form of a reading was given by Miss Barbara Hammer of Kansas City, Mo., a sophomore.

A select group of singers, "The Carolers," sang several numbers. Misses Patricia Bauer, Bonnie Wagner, and Thomas O. Skiles joined in introduction of chairmen and advisers.

Walsh Is Master-Of-Ceremonies

Karin Walsh, city editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, served as master-of-ceremonies. He presented a number of visiting newspapermen including Milburn P. Akers, executive editor of the Sun-Times.

The principal address by Mr. List was directed to the young men and women who serve school newspapers, but it reflected sound principles of professional journalism and encompassed many facts drawn from his long experience as a publisher.

He said in part: "Newspapers must 'improve their product' and maintain a sense of community responsibility to keep up with today's competition. This applies equally to the big city daily, small weekly, or school paper."

Walsh Receives Citation

Karin Walsh, Sun-Times Editor who was Master-of-Ceremonies at the banquet, received a citation from MacMurray expressing appreciation for his five years service at the newspaper conferences.

The citation, describing Mr. Walsh as the "foremost wit, scholar, and poet of them all," was presented by conference chairman Patricia Bauer. It was signed by President Louis Norris, Milburn P. Akers—on behalf of the Board of Trustees—Tom Skiles, Public Relations Director, Miss Bauer, and editors Dorothy Bunke and Paul Jablon of MacMurray student newspapers.

The Paper Must Be Good

"Newspapers should first concentrate on 'product improvement' because clever and intensive promotion can get circulation for a time—but it can never keep it unless the content of the paper itself is good."

"Product improvement means keeping up to date, being sensitive to the pulse of the public—anticipating trends—plus continuous self-analysis."

"Product improvement includes a bright paper, with emphasis on amusing heads and humorously-treated stories whenever possible."

"This can be done, he pointed out, by supplementing the news with comic strips, health hints, psychiatric tips, diet and beauty

ROODHOUSE — Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Harp, Merle Harp, Mrs. Ray Denney and Maurice Harp of Denney and Co., and O. D. Harp, Webster Groves, Mo., attended ceremonies held in Bloomington Wednesday night by the Commandery of which their son and brother, Daniel Harp, is Commander. The visiting group attended the banquet and inspection and the luncheon given following the inspection held at the home of Commander Harp in Bloomington.

The inspection was made by the Grand Officer of the Masonic Lodge and the luncheon at the Commander's home honored him and the visitors as well as the Executive committee. The next meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 24, in the council room of the City Hall.

David Brown Of Carrollton Is Eagle Scout

CARROLLTON — David Brown, 15 year old son of Mrs. Hester Brown of this city, passed the Eagle Scout Board of Review and is now an Eagle Scout, the third to win that honor in the city of Carrollton since World War II.

The other two winners are Tommie Stone, son of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Leonard Stone who was honored in 1956 and Carl Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyde Morrison who received the honor in 1957.

Brown, who is a sophomore in the Carrollton Community Unit High School, is a member of the Explorer Troop and has been for one year and prior to that he was a member of the local Boy Scout troop for three years.

Bruce Baker represented the Plass Bird Council on the reviewing board and the other members of the board were John Clark, F. L. Imus and Eugene Battie.

Community responsibility, a second yardstick for keeping up with today's competition, includes two things, he said: good taste and basic standards of decency, and how the newspaper and the people who work for it contribute to the community's progress.

"Even though you have product improvement," he said, "it could become quite useless without a deep sense of community responsibility."

"For example, we should be very sure that the facts are in the public interest—not just bits of juicy sensationalism. We do not have enough space to print all of the news available. Every unnecessary phrase we omit makes room for the publication of other news. So why waste your space making enemies."

Newspapers can contribute physically to the improvement of the community by sparking civic improvements and originating ideas for community improvements, he said.

There will be special music each evening. Soloists will be Norman Pryor, Hamill Robison, Mr. Whelan and Mrs. Al Marrett. Groups who will assist with the musical portion of the program during the two weeks are the Griggsville Youth Choir, Pittsfield High school choir, the El Dara Quartet, the Pittsfield Intermediate choir, the Barry High school choir, the Pittsfield Adult choir and the Bayliss

Choir.

It takes 5 lamps

to bring a living room to life

Good lighting can give many a weary-looking room a new lease on life. Try this decorators' rule of thumb... 5 lamps for most living rooms. See how much more inviting your home can be... how much more comfortable!

Good lighting works with your eyes, not against them. Unknown to you, your eyes must work harder in light that's too dim or that glares. In a room lighted right you can sew or read... watch television... knit... or play games without eyestrain. And because your eyes are at ease, you're more comfortable, too.

Use good lighting to help make your home more cheerful... more relaxing.

Eyesight is priceless — good light is cheap.

Her pictures included many scenic views of the country on the different islands in the Hawaiian group, beautiful floral views and landscapes, ocean scenes, and buildings. Festive Pork Loin Roast

For family meals or the most select a 4 to 6 pound pork loin roast. Have your meat retailer remove the backbone, and then your carving problems will be eliminated.

Easily prepared, a golden-brown, juicy pork roast is so good any time of the year. Variety-lending fruit glazes, accompaniments, and garnishes can be as whimsical as the temperature outside and products of any homeowner's imagination.

This pork loin roast, accompanied by corn-stuffed green peppers adds elegance to any occasion. Whipped potatoes, a green salad and a quick fruit dessert might complete your distinctive menu.

For this delicious meat dish, select a 4 to 6 pound pork loin roast. Have your meat retailer remove the backbone, and then your carving problems will be eliminated.

When you are ready to begin roasting the meat (allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound), season with salt and pepper. Place fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. This position in the pan allows the heat to circulate around the meat and the fat melts and runs down over the meat as it cooks.

Next, insert a roast meat thermometer into the center of the thickest part of the roast, making certain that the bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. This step desires degree of doneness, no matter what the size and shape of the roast.

Since roasting is a dry heat method of meat cooking, do not cover the roast and do not add water. Roast the meat in a moderate oven (350° F.) until the meat thermometer registers 185° F., which is the well-done stage recommended for fresh pork roasts.

The drippings from the roast make a rich, flavorful gravy which can be prepared while the roast is standing (20 to 30 minutes), before carving. Remove the carved slices to heated plates and then, listen for requests for seconds!
